Where does it come from?

Each year business organizations across the United States report unclaimed property belonging to Washington residents and former residents, whose last known address is in our state.

Every state has an Unclaimed Property program

If you have lived in other states, you may want to contact those states directly. To obtain the list of each states' Unclaimed Property Program, visit our web site at <http://ucp.dor.wa.gov> or call our office at 1-800-435-2429.

How does Revenue find owners?

The Department of Revenue places advertisements in major newspapers across the state. News releases are sent to TV and radio stations periodically. Our web site has a list you can search. We also employ an Owner Locator who uses modern technology to reunite owners with their property.

Owner outreach

The Department of Revenue provides Owner Outreach Services to the public. This is a fun and informational presentation presented by our Owner Locator, which can last from five to 30 minutes depending on your business or organization's needs. The Owner Locator is also available to set up our outreach display and laptop computer at your next staff meeting/retreat or even in your lunchroom. The laptop computer will provide an opportunity for your employees to search the database of over 1 million names to see if they have any unclaimed property. You can request a visit from the Owner Locator by calling our office or visiting our web site at <http://ucp.dor.wa.gov>.

This program does not use general tax dollars to locate unclaimed property owners.
